Four months rule: Your operator can check your roaming usage for four months to see if it appears normal. If during this period you have been more abroad than at home and used your mobile more abroad than at home, your operator may ask you to clarify the situation. You have 14 days to do it. If you continue to use your phone abroad than at home, your carrier may start charging a roaming fee.

Extra Datasim is an extra SIM-card for data, for MEX and for Stand-alone mobile that will use the data volume from the main subscription.
